HEALTH SHOE

GRAND OPENING of SPRING STYLES.

Before Ralston shoes had revolutionized the science of shoemaking, if a customer insisted on getting a comfortable shoe, we gave him one make of shoe, and if he demanded style we showed him an altogether different make.

We don't do that now—we don't have to. In either case we show him a Ralston—then ask him to try on a pair. By that time he is convinced that Ralstons combine both style and comfort in a way which cannot but please the most exacting.

The Ralstons which we are showing this season offer you exceptional value for four dollars. We shall be pleased to have you look them over.

purchases counts at so much per pound, or skrewed tailed terriers to put diamonds in their ears for earrings?"

He assailed Roosevelt for the part he took in the famous trial. "To take advantage of his high position to use his influence to convict the miners was unfair; it was the act of a man who would shoot a Spaniard in the back on the hill of San Juan and then boast about it afterwards. In speaking of the place of the miners in the industrial world, he produced much merriment in saying that they even mined the iron used in making the pen with which he wrote the famous 'undesirable citizen letter.' He defended every man whom Roosevelt has branded as an undesirable citizen. Harriman, he declared, was a man who would make a great director under socialism and 'he would be blessed by all of the people instead of cursed by most of them.' William R. Hearst and Eugene V. Debs were also classed as undesirables and the speaker felt it an honor to be classed with such benefactors of mankind. He felt no anger towards Mr. Roosevelt, he was merely sorry for him. He sends an olive branch to Japan but if they refused to take it he sent Admiral Evans with a fleet of battleships to force them to accept it. And 'this is the Prince of Peace, the winner of the Nobel prize.'"

Taft, he said, was to carry out Roosevelt policies, and he vigorously protested against Taft being the "their apparent to his imperial majesty."

In concluding his speech he said: "The pen is mightier than the sword, but the pick and shovel is mightier than both."

HORRORS

Guinness woman played the game of cupid with murderous success by a use of the mails. Shortly after the death of Philip Guinness, her second husband, in 1903, Mrs. Guinness began getting mail at the rate of four to ten letters a day. These came from everywhere in answer to an advertisement she had inserted in a Chicago matrimonial publication.

Prosecutor Smith adheres to his belief that Ray Lamphere, the local admirer of Mrs. Guinness, knows all about the widow's murderous career. Smith will attempt to indict him on five counts, one for murder in each of the cases of Mrs. Guinness and her three children and one for arson.

Prosecutor Smith is sure he can prove by circumstantial evidence that Lamphere set fire to the Guinness house in order to seal the lips of the widow forever.

The belief in growing that Mrs. Guinness was not burned to death in the fire at her home, but that the body supposed to be hers is really that of another woman. The basis for this belief is that the head of the body supposed to be Mrs. Guinness is missing. Many believe that Mrs. Guinness is now on her way to Norway.

The basement and walls of the burned Guinness home were examined today. Sheriff Smulzer will probably tear these down to hunt for further bodies. An autopsy on the bodies of the two men, one girl and two children unearthed yesterday from three "soft spots" on the farm, was held at midnight. All had been murdered. These bodies that were not dismembered were found to have small holes in the skull.

The sheriff notified the Chicago police to be on the lookout for a gang in the city believed to be in the wholesale murder business for the purpose of collecting insurance.

The gang is believed to have disposed of part of the bodies in Laporte. On Saturday, April 25, two days before her home was burned, Mrs. Guinness received by express from Chicago four large trunks. Sheriff Smulzer is confident, however, that they contained bodies of murdered people shipped here from Chicago.
